Abstract

This study aimed at analyzing the patriotism in the Indo-Pak press. The timeline for this was chosen from Pulwama attack to operation Swift Retort on Feb 27, 2019. The selected samples for this study were printed news from Dawn and Time of India. The methodologic framework for this study was comprised of Content Analysis with the help of theoretical framework of framing theory. In the early stages, I observed that both the press in the crisis's times blame each other and use a very harsh tone for each other. Then I observed that both the media are mouthpieces of their respective governments and cannot utter a word without the support of their government. Therefore, media always ignites the first match and then continues to harp about the war as the only situation.
