Abstract

The current research is focused on the element of democratizing conflicts in Pakistan. This research is quantitative in nature and loosely studies how various democratizing conflicts in Pakistan have been dealt with and their impact on the democratic front. To carry out this research, more than one hundred and sixty stories were selected from various newspapers of Pakistan. Out of these stories, it was find out that Dawn newspaper is one such newspaper that covers neutral stories as it covered the least number of stories related to democratization and democratization conflicts in Pakistan as compared to the other two newspapers selected for this current research study.
