I am very grateful to Allah Almighty, who is beneficent and most merciful. This research would not be completed without him because of the ability that he give to me to finish such research.

I am very thankful to my supervisor “Imtiaz Ahmad Mohar” the one who is very helpful during the research by guiding me in right direction and his experience and skills provide me a lot of help while supervising .The supervisor help me to utilize my skills in effective way to achieve my goals.

There are many people in the research who helped me to complete my research in different ways while conducting interviews and surveys. Without all those this research was impossible to complete. These people help is a lot in gathering proper data and information and support my research work.

I would also want to thank Bahria University Islamabad Campus who provides me opportunity to learn and develop further more skills and increase my knowledge through such research. The Bahria university provides me resources and support which are required to do such research and university is responsible for making such research successful in particular period of time.

ABSTRACT

Whether it is done in the city or country or outside the country borders product distribution plays an imperative role. The main department responsible for the distribution of the product is in fact the supply chain, within which inventory and warehousing are the prime factors. To keep a proper account of the stockpile the goods produced are sent to the warehouses directly instead of being sent to the distributors. The demand and supply of the stock are dealt through up-to-date and comprehensive inventory systems. The purpose of this research is to determine the effect inventory management and warehousing has on the distribution of products in the city Islamabad.
