ABSTRACT

In the present research the Relationship between Parental Conflicts and personality of teenagers was studied. In order to find out personality traits of the teenagers, Gordon personal Inventory was administered to a sample of 200 students within the age range of 13 to 19 years. Furthermore to find out the Parental Conflict, participants were asked to fill a questionnaire consisting of fourteen questions regarding Parental Conflict.

Two hundred participants were divided into two categories, 100 males' students and 100 females' students.

Chi-square test was used for the statistical analysis of the data.

Out of four hypotheses only one hypothesis was highly significant at $P < 0.001$ level and the remaining three hypotheses were significant at $P < 0.05$ levels. This indicates that a positive relationship exists between the personality of the teenagers and Parental Conflict.
