ACKNOWLEDGMENT

First and foremost we would thank Allah Almighty for giving us the determination to complete our thesis. We would like to express our gratitude to our supervisor, Dr. Zainab Hussain Bhutto for her constant support and motivating us throughout this journey. We would extend our gratitude to the Director of our institute Dr. Zainab F. Zadeh and committee member Ms. Shabnam Arshi for guiding us and keeping our confidence high. Their constant support and guidance motivated us to cross all the hurdles we faced during the completion of our thesis. Also, we pay a note of thanks to Sir Mumtaz for helping us out with the analysis of the results. Moreover, we would also like to thank all the participants who took out their time to fill the forms and our families who supported us in getting through with the thesis.

ABSTRACT

The present study aims at studying the significant difference in parenting styles of satisfied married individuals and dissatisfied married individuals. It was hypothesized that there would be a significant difference in the parenting styles of satisfied and dissatisfied married individuals. For this purpose, the sample of 25 married males and 25 married females with children limited to the eldest child not more than 15 years of age were selected. Data was collected through informed consent form, demographic form, Parenting Style Questionnaire (Robin, Mandleco, Olsen & Hart, 1995) and ENRICH Marital Satisfaction Scale (Fowers & Olson, 1993). Statistical analysis showed no significant difference in the parenting styles of satisfied and dissatisfied married individuals. Also, limitations and recommendations of the research study were included.
